

The International Renewable Energy Conference in Eilat provides an important platform for industry leaders, scientists, regulators, bankers and investors to share information and collaborate in shaping a vibrant future economy that is focused on reducing dependence on fossil fuels and helps protect the delicate balance of life on earth.

Following the presentation of the Eilat-Eilat vision at the 2007 conference and significant achievements in 2008 and 2009, this years up-coming conference will focus on presenting the plans, resources and current fieldwork in preparation for the next critical stage – a massive regional implementation of renewable energy technologies that can act as a model for comprehensive solutions for the energy crisis facing Israel and the world at large.
